

Valerio Tramutoli is working National Research Council-Institute of Methodologies of Environmental Analysis, Italy. Her international experience includes various programs, contributions and participation in different countries for diverse fields of study. Her research interests as Geoinformatics & Geostatistics, and many publications in various national and international journals. He is the author Board Member of Journal and serves as a member of various associations, apart from being an author for many books.